

Revolutionary Email Archiving Appliance to Debut at Disaster Recovery Journal 'Spring World 2010' Conference

Abacus Solutions will reveal new capabilities of the Email Archiving Appliance (EMA) at the world's largest business continuity/disaster recovery conference 'Spring World 2010.' The conference will be held March 21-23 in Orlando, Florida.

Marietta, GA (prHWY.com) March 21, 2010 - Abacus Solutions, a leading provider of IT infrastructure solutions, announced today their participation in the Disaster Recovery Journal's 'Spring World 2010'. The company will exhibit its Email Archiving Appliance, EMA at the show, with live, fifteen minute demonstrations and streaming video animations.

Abacus Solutions is excited to reveal new EMA capabilities at the show, including the new voice-to-archive function. At the show, Abacus Solution's Senior Engineer, David Harmer, will be on-hand to demonstrate why EMA should be considered as far more than a basic email archiver.

"These days, companies cannot afford to find themselves in the midst of a legal battle without having properly backed up their emails and documents. EMA alleviates the burden of backing up these documents, since it archives everything automatically," said Patrick Hiller, CEO of Abacus Solutions. "EMA includes necessary archiving functions, including email archiving, print to archive, and now voice to archive."

Abacus is the exclusive EMA distributor for North America. Abacus sells EMA as either a stand-alone product, or bundled with storage. This helps customers see exactly what they are getting for a lump price, rather than having to piece-meal a solution together. The EMA is extremely easy to install, and is fully compliant with any storage, server and mail server. Once the EMA is installed, no action is required by the end-user, their emails and documents are automatically stored by the EMA.

"We understand that an archiver solution needs to solve two separate business needs at the same time. It needs to be fully compliant, obeying all of the legal requirements and guidelines. But it also has to be user-friendly and easy to manage," Hiller said. "EMA has managed to do both."

The DRJ 'Spring World 2010' will take place on March 21-23 in Orlando, Florida. Abacus engineers and representatives will be on-hand to discuss the Email Archiving Appliance at Booth 417.
