The EPA Alliance Training Group (EPA Alliance) announced today that it has opened and updated its regulatory environmental training center for all online visitors.

Houston, TX (prHWY.com) September 21, 2010 - The EPA Alliance Training Group (EPA Alliance), owned and operated by Baxter Communications Group, LLC is an environmental regulatory training firm out of Houston, TX. EPA Alliance announced today that it has opened and updated its regulatory environmental training center for all visitors. EPA Alliance will provide open enrollment public training seminars, private training courses customized for each client and online training which will give environmental professionals a way to receive affordable, timely, accurate and comprehensive environmental training anywhere in the world at anytime with a secure internet connection.

"While there are numerous ways an individual can elect to pursue his or her continuing education in the environmental field, our courses give our students the opportunity and process of learning new skills and acquiring knowledge that is far superior to what others are offering in a classroom setting and over the world-wide web", says Jeremy Kelley, the owner of Baxter Communications Group and Acting Director of EPA Alliance.

Originally founded in 2009, EPA Alliance was formed provide reliable and comprehensive environmental regulatory training to the private and government sectors. Our goal is to provide students and industry professionals with the skills and knowledge that enable them to be successful in their day-to-day operations as environmental, health and safety professionals.

EPA Alliance believes that environmental education and awareness is the door to better managing available resources and compliance. Our focus is to empower the individuals with knowledge they need to better manage their responsibilities, avoid complications with confusing regulatory misinterpretations, and overall, achieve compliance in their workplace. Our courses are comprehensive, engaging and presented in an easy to understand format that both the beginner and advanced practitioner can relate to.

Our 2011 Public Training Schedule is now open and available for registration at <http://www.epaalliance.com/publictraining.html>
