Graduation day is very important in the life of a graduate, no matter what age he is, completing an academic year or program of study is an achievement worthy of praise and celebration. Parents looking for graduation gift ideas often end up giving their graduate sons and daughters a totally unrelated and a common gift item, which loses its relevance in a short while. The overall effect of an inappropriate graduation gift is the graduate quickly forgetting about that all-important day in his academic life. Cap off the proud moment with the perfect graduation gift, such as a custom bobblehead for graduation.

To save the memory of graduation day for all your life, YesBobbleheads.com pioneers customized graduation bobbleHeads. "In my times, we did not have many options when it came to graduation gift ideas. Most graduates of yesteryears can recall only photographs as graduation day memorabilia. You had to purchase the photographs in order to have some kind of memory of that historic day of your life. However, now I realize that I bought them because there were few choices from which to choose," says Benjamin Long, CEO of YesBobbleheads.com recalling his days when he graduated out of university after 4 years of studies.

The graduation BobbleHeads can be customized by printing text on the base of it (like school name, graduate name, the major and so on). The company's senior sales manager Brad Walker says, "We sincerely want to help worldwide people to save the special memory with our custom bobblehead figurines. The promotion is a good opportunity for customers to get high quality figurines at affordable prices. It's wise for clients to visit our online shop before making a decision."
